

WELCOME TO THE FEATHERS LUDLOW

Welcome to the Feathers Tea Room in the year we celebrate our 400th birthday!

The Feathers was built in 1619 on the foundations of an earlier building as a home for Rees Jones, a successful lawyer from Pembrokeshire. The Feathers name comes from the plumes of Ostrich feathers carved in to the timber façade of the building which can still be seen on the street gables. Feathers were fashionable at the time, probably because of the celebrations when the future Charles I became Prince of Wales three years earlier.

In 1670 Rees Jones' grandson turned the family home into an inn, the Feathers has been welcoming guests ever since and expanding over the years, eventually becoming known as a hotel in the 1860s.

Also in 1619 Ludlow was a prosperous town, home to the Council of the Marches which met at Ludlow Castle, and considered to be the capital of Wales.

Tea was a rare luxury only available at the court of James I having first been brought to England by the East India Company in 1610. Inigo Jones began building The Banqueting House at Whitehall, London. Cyrano de Bergerac, French soldier and poet born March 6. Richard Burbage, English Actor and Theatre Proprietor died 13 March.

England and the Netherlands signed a trade treaty for the Indies.

38 colonists from Berkeley, England disembark in Virginia and gave thanks to God, this is considered the first Thanksgiving America. One year later, the Pilgrim Fathers were to leave England for America on-board the Mayflower.
